

Contents

Sylvia Mayer and Graham Wilson

Ecodidactic Perspectives on English Language, Literatures and Cultures:
An Introduction 1

John Parham

The Deficiency of ‘Environmental Capital’:
Why Environmentalism Needs a Reflexive Pedagogy 7

Edward Haig

How Green Are Your Textbooks? Applying an Ecological Critical
Language Awareness Pedagogy in the EFL Classroom 23

George M. Jacobs, Anita Lie and Susan Amy

An Indonesian Example of Teaching English via Environmental Education 45

Peter Dines and Hanspeter Dörfel

Environmental Awareness: A Topic for Advanced Language Classes 63

Graham Wilson

Nature Documentaries in the Language Classroom:
From Critical Media Literacy to Environmental Competence 87

Sylvia Mayer

Teaching Hollywood Environmentalist Movies:
The Example of The Day after Tomorrow 105

Christian Krug

Teaching Ecotourism: Developing Interactive Study Modules 121

Andrew Stables

On Teaching and Learning the Book of the World 145

Uwe Kuchler

“How deep the woods are and lightless”.
Seeking Opportunities for Ecocritical and Intercultural Teaching 163

Jan Hollm and Anke Uebel
Utopias for our Time: Teaching Ecotopian and Ecodystopian Writing	179
Maureen Devine
Swamp Semantics, or Where Goes the Gym?	193
Dirk Hohnsträter
Aesthetic Presence and Its Eco-Ethical Relevance: Teaching V. S. Naipaul with and against H. U. Gumbrecht	213
Christine Gerhardt
Literature, Nature, and the Crux of Consciousness-Raising	223
List of Contributors	235